Kirtland AFB hosts Developmental Training Model

Over 1000 attendees are expected to participate in six Air Force Regional Developmental Training Model (DTM) & child development conferences scheduled for early 2004. Kirtland is one of six bases selected worldwide to host a DTM training conference. Other bases include Ramstein AB Germany, Eglin AFB Fla., Lackland AFB Texas, Langley AFB Va., and Yokota AB Japan. The Kirtland conference is scheduled for Mar. 4-7 at conference site—here. Child development program managers, Training and Curriculum Specialists (T&Cs) and Child Development Program Assistants (CDPAs) Air Force-wide will attend workshop sessions designed to strengthen the Air Force quality programming as well as streamline and standardize the present process. Two tracks will be provided: one for managers and T&Cs and the other for CDPAs.

Sessions for child development center managers and T&Cs will focus on the newly adopted DTM. "The Air Force Developmental Training Model is a logical approach to staff training. Meeting adult learners at their levels and assisting them with actively participating in the learning process can only lead to improvement in job performance," said Ms. Toni Koppen, Air Force Family Member Programs Chief. Dr. Lynn Wilson, a Caliber Associates consultant, initially developed this training model in 2002 specifically for Pacific Air Force Child and Youth Programs. Revisions have been made and the DTM will be implemented to meet the need of AF bases worldwide.

CDPAs can choose from 20 workshops being offered by Caliber Associates Inc. Caliber has provided training for Air Force staff in early childhood and school age programs for over 10 years and is a leader in child care work life strategies. Workshops offered include seminars developed to enhance programming as well as provide professional development for all participants.

The long-term goal of these conferences is to sustain high quality programming, strengthen the network of dedicated Air Force child development personnel, and provide a meaningful training process that responds to their unique needs.

The DTM Conference is being hosted by the Family Member Programs Flight at Kirtland AFB. Call Karleen Kaufman-Williams at 846-1555 for more information.
